ENGLAND AND THE EUROPEAN

In another column will be found the gist of the arguments why the English Cabinet refused to grant Denmark material aid in her present difficulty. France would not join in any offensive movement; Russia was averse to fighting for anybody but herself; and England would therefore have been required to go into the war single handed. But there were other reasons which deterred Her Majesty's Government. There was that irrepressible republic across the Atlantic which, although having its hands quite full at the present time, appeared to Earl Russell sufficiently dangerous to justify him pocketing insults from Germany in the dread that he might receive contumely from the United States. "What's choleric in the captain is rank blasphemy in the soldier." From the representatives of a humane, enlightened and libe ral monarchy like Prussia, a snubbing can be swallowed with even a gusto; but from the common herd who make up a republic we must not tolerate even the indication of disrespect. If Earl Russell's explanation means nything this is about it. The bad taste as well as folly of trying to associate the English mind with war with America -- with a war that would carry desolation to the homes of the British poor from "John O'Groat's" to Cape Clear, and which would plunge the most prosperous portions of the American continent into a ruin almost equal to that which pervades the South-is forcibly apparent. Not content is the English Cabinet with blustering and back-ng down-with leaving the Danes, to infer that assistance would be render ed on certain contingencies, and when those contingencies presented themselves then saying it could not afford to go to war-it takes the opportunity of informing friendly nation that it expects to have hostili ties with it some of these fine days. Never was there a more childish display of im potence in any Legislative body than this explanation of the Ministry on its Danish policy. There were not probably in either House ten members who were unaware of the fact that had England taken a firm stand when the Federal execution was about to take place at Holstein, the Danish war, and it may be a European war, would have been saved; yet the majority of the Lower House the remnant of liberty in Northern Europe.

"The true question," says even the London Times, " is not what fighting would cost us, but whether we ought to fight." The position is correct. Many a peaceful policy has proved a "penny wise and pound foolish" one. The homely proverb of "the stitch in time," is just as applicable in national as it is in domestic affairs. It is the interest o freedom in Europe that Denmark should be preserved; if this cannot be done peaceably, then it is the interest of a hundred millions of down-trodden people that war with all its horrors should enter the arena. When the conflagration extends through the tangled forest we may regret the destruction of many a lofty pine, but we have at least the satis faction of knowing that the reptiles who have luxuriated so long in its recesses, will have to feel the effects of the flame.

at least were willing to accept the statement

war was justifiable-if ever it was a neces

now when armed despotism is crushing out

The taunts and insults of the Germans ma not go long unrebuked; but it is the despotic insolence of their rulers that deserve European chastisement. "Politically speaking," says the London Times, "Central Europe is all volcanic soil. Germany, Poland, and Hungary are all seething with agitation, like Italy and Turkey. The doings of Prussia in the Duchies are as likely to exasperate the Germans as the English; and never since 1848 has a Germanic 'question' bee wanting. Hungary is always on the brink of insurrection : Italy thinks war preferable to the suspense and charges of an armed peace; in every country there are parties which would hail a general conflagration as the most welcome of events. Let those who undervalue our offensive powers just calculate the effects which would be produced by the mere appearance of a British squadron in the Adriatic on a mission of war. The sight of our flag and the hope of our co-operation would kindle the flames of revolt in Venice, Hungary, and the Polish provinces, and while Austria and Prussia vere engaged in the Danish Peninsula the Continent would be on fire behind them. It we became belligerents, our commerce would be exposed to interruption, but while we should certainly command the sea and blockade the ports of our enemies, out fleets would at the same time carry encouragement and aid to every discontented nationality. In the rear of the German armies there are people and countries which only wait for the signal we are provoked to give." England has too long given her blood and her treasure to the aid of dynasties, which were too often despotisms; let us hope that if she again "lets slip the dogs of war," it will not be to prop up effete or decaying monarchies, but to extend her own liberty over the peoples of Central Europe.

No sooner was this excitement over than the bells were again set in motion, and the firemen had to buckle on their harness and start for the extreme opposite end of the city to extinguish fires raging near the Rock Bay Tannery, and on the premises of Mr. Henry Rhodes. Fortunately no damage worth naming was done. The fire depastment certainly deserve especial thanks for the vigilance and energy displayed by them during one of the most scotching days experienced this summer.

from view by the density of the smoke from bush fires raging on both sides of the Straits. Indeed the fires to the westward of Victoria are so general, and emit such clouds of smoke, that it is only now and then that the eye car reach as far as Beachy Head. These are probably attributable to carelessness on the part of travellers to the diggings, in not extinguishing their camp fires. At this seathe part of travelers to the diggings, in not extinguishing their camp fires. At this scason of the year it is only necessary to apply the torch to the dry undergrowth and the conflagration rapidly extends. Another man who was present, offered to take them to sleep in his cabin. The Magistrate said the offence was a very serious one, but in order to give the prisoner an opportunity of procuring testimonials, he would adjourn the case for one day.

From Mr. Geary, who has a claim about two miles above the junction of Leech and Sooke rivers, we obtain the following information: He and his partner, who are both amateur miners' have been at work five days with a rocker, washing the loose rock and erevice dirt, and have washed out three ounces of dust. Nearly half of this amount was taken from one crevice, and the whole from less than 20 feet of rock. One nugget was worth $50 to $60. A Parliamentary return states that in April, 1804, 109,760 non-commissioned officers and men in Her Majesty's land forces were Episcopalianz, 20,708 Presbyterians, 5,290 other Protestants, and 58,508 Roman Catholics. BARL RUSSELL'S EXPLANATION. Recruiting Federal Armies in Ireland. The following is the pith of Earl Russell's neech in the House of Lords on the question of English aid to Denmark:—

The French Government sees very clearly the dangers to which France might be exposed by interfering, but it says at the same time that it would be an easy operation for England; that England, with her naval power, might add most materially to the strength of Denmark and assist in bringing the war accordance.

Nearly half of this amount was taken from one crevice, and the whole from less than 20 feet of rock. One nugget was worth $\tilde{S}$ to $6$. They have not prospected any in the bench at the rear of their claim. A company, two claims above them, comprising 6 partners, have been washing four days, and have taken out half an ounce per day to the man.

On Monday Scully and his partner, whose claim is next to our informant's, took out two ounces. Scully says he has averaged half an onnée to the man for the last five days, taken out by erevicing.

All those who are holding claims appear to be well satisfied, and our informant is sure that the average returns on the whole creek exceed $3 per day per man. Several of the claims are working in the oed of the creek by turning off the water from small spots and have succeeded well. The bed is generally believed to contain rich pay. Serval companies are preparing to put in sluice boxes. A number of shaffs had been sunk in the benches from a depth of from 6 to 10 feet, with various results. Two or three had struck four cents to the pan, others had got nothing.

Leech river is staked off for 6 miles up. Mr. Geary came down from two miles above the junction to the Frenchman's in four honors and a quarter.

The trail is much better than at first.

The gold is apparently of a different kind from that of Leech river, and has evidently been less exposed to the action of water, as it is quite rough, and contains apecks of quartz. Another report says that a number of men are making from $3 to $5 per day at the diggings.

STRAGGLERS FROM THE BATTLEFIELD .- A correspondent of the New York News has the following on skalkers:—It is amusing to see Lord Brougham recently in the House of Lords said he greatly disapproved of the conduct of the Federal Government, not conduct of the Federal Government, not conly in the bill they began but could not carry out, as the result has shown, to establish depots for raising foreign recruits, but in their taking men, even when they did not inveigle them by tricks; even when the men honestly entered, knowing what they were about, not deceived by crimps, not deluded under the influence of strong liquors, not told that they were going to labor in the fields, and afterwards told that there was no work for them and that they might if they pleas. Sometimes these fellows drop as if struck by a thunderbolt, and lie among the wounded until they have an opportunity to crawl to the woods in the rear Occasionally they are the woods in the rear Occasionally they are carried off the field, representing themselves as being mortally wounded. Sometimes they take off one heet, tie a handkerchief around the foot, use a limb of a tree in lieu of a crutch, and make their way out of danger, assuming all the sufferings and weakness of a dangerously wounded man. When their cowardice is detected they frame all sorts of excuses; some have rheumatism, some are dangerously ill, some thought they were shot, some came back to take care of a wounded comrade, some were posted in the rear for some prepoterous purpose, and some go back as special messengers.

"An English stoom argues that a' day in the moon' equals fourteen of our days. It begins with a slow sunshine, followed by a brilliant sunshine and intense heat (about 212 degrees Fahr.); the sky is intensely black (there being no atmosphere like ours, to which blue sky is due); the stars are visible and the horizon is limited; there is dead silonce; the cold in the intensely black shadow is very great; and there is no misl perspective. I have used a Florence Sewing Machine twy gears; I brought it across the plains; it has nee yet been out of order, and I can truly say that is excess all other Machines that I have used. I ra a Ladd & Webster six months, a Wineeler & Wilson eight months, and used a Grover & Baker alter nately with Sloat's for two years. I am familiar with the Hlowe and several of the small machines but I never use one that would deal kinds of words that the even content would deal kinds of words to be too highly recommended. I do not think it can be too highly recommended.

Mrs. ISAAU ELLIS, Marysville.

I have used the Wheeler & Wilson about two years, the Taggart & Farr as months, the Sloat Eliptic about the same time, the Williams & Orvis nearly two years, and have dealt in several of the small machines, until thoroughly disgusted with every machine that sews with only one thread. The Florence is the only Machine this has come under my notice, that gives perfect and entire satisfaction. No one can estimate its value until they have used and tested it, as I have done. Indeed, for thin work it is invaluable.

GEO, GILLIO.

I believe I can fully and conscientiously indors each qualification claimed in the Florence Machine I have thoroughly tested it on work of all grades and each trial has been eminently satisfactory. It takes hold of a delicate fabric delicately, and of strong one with strength. To me it seems more than a MacHine—an almost intelligent, willing helper. Its use is easily learned, and its construction is certain the strength of the 27, HARLBY STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARB, and 34, LUDGATE HILL (over BENSON'S,) LONDON; PHININGHAM: 65, New STREET.

Parties at the extremity of the globe, by forward ing particulars at to the condition of their mouths, return that which will enable them to take an impression of the mouth, so as to enable Messrs. G to forward either a partial or complete set of feeth.

After having a Florence Mac_ine in use nearly spear, I feel that I can truly recommend it as being all that is claimed for it. I have used Singer's Grover a Baker's, and the Wheeler & Wilson Machines, and consider the Florence superior to any Mrs JENNIE A. EGAN,
